ABOUT BAR COUNCIL OF DELHI

The Bar Council of Delhi (BCD), established in 1961, under the Advocates Act, 1961, serves as a significant pillar of the legal framework in India's capital. Initially formed to oversee a group of 3,000 advocates, BCD has grown alongside the city, now representing a vast network of over 1,40,000 legal professionals. This expansion reflects not just the growth of the legal profession in Delhi but also BCD's role in shaping the region's legal landscape, ensuring that the highest standards of practice and ethics are upheld.

BCD's influence extends far beyond its regulatory duties. It has played a significant role in modernizing the legal infrastructure, embracing new technologies to enhance its services and accessibility. The Council's facilities, such as its advanced headquarters at the Siri Fort, Delhi and its resource-rich library at the Tis Hazari Courts, provide the legal community with essential tools for continuous learning and professional development. These initiatives highlight BCD's commitment to stay at the forefront of legal innovation, supporting advocates, and contributing to the broader legal discourse in India.

As a driving force in the evolution of Delhi's legal ecosystem, the Bar Council of Delhi has consistently advocated the principles of justice, integrity, and professional excellence. Its journey from a modest body to a central institution in the legal arena underscores its importance in the broader narrative of India's legal progress. Looking ahead, BCD remains dedicated to its mission of advancing the rule of law, ensuring that both, the legal community and the public, continue to benefit from a fair and robust legal system.
